

I am writing in regards to the attempt by the CBA to challenge Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. I sincerely hope that you will do everything in your power to squash this challenge. I do not want calls from ANYONE I do not personally know. I consider all solicitation calls a nuisance. It is especially annoying since my husband and I work opposite shifts and have a small child. Most of the "standard" call hours wake at least one of us up. I have never had any luck getting any company to honor their agreements not to call, even after repeated requests without threat of legal action. If this challenge works, the calls will be unstoppable.
